WHAT SHOULD YOU LOOK FOR IN AN OFFICE CHAIR?

Office chairs come with a variety of mechanisms that may control the tilt angle, tension tightness and other functions. These features can make a huge difference depending on how much time you spend in your chair.

Mobility – Castors

Most office chairs, as well as our ZEN Task chair have castors, allowing for ease of movement around your desk and removing the risk of straining when reaching across the desk to reach something.

Swivel Base

ZEN Task chair allows you to freely swivel – turn around in your chair – for ease of access to various parts of the desk.

Lumbar Support

Our ZEN office chair has a lumbar support for the lower back – it helps to keep the spine in its naturally curved ‘S’ shape – an adjustable lumbar support, allowing to fit it to the user.

Adjustable Height

The ability to modify the seat height of your office chair can be essential in keeping you comfortable even during long hours.

Tilt Control / Adjustability

Our ZEN task chair has a tilt control, allowing for a slight angle of your seat back. Adjusting the backrest allows the user to relieve any pressure on the upper back by adapting to the posture.

Adjustable Armrests

Adjustable armrests may be an important source of support, preventing discomfort. ZEN has height adjustable arms, ideal for smaller or taller structures.

Materials

Office chairs may vary with their materials. Seat should be adequately padded to offer support for the user. This also applies to arms and back if the chair is with solid back – some chairs may be with mesh back. Our ZEN chair has a dense long lasting seat foam upholstered in premium quality fire safe fabric.
